

Round-up | DVI-D & HDMI CABLES

Audioquest
DV-1 (15m) £266

... VERDICT

The DV-1 offers good performance and a high standard of performance for the length – it'll suit home cinema installations well

LOOKING FOR A cable for use in a home cinema installation? Perhaps this 15m (that's 15, not 1.5) stretch from Audioquest will do the job.

The DV-1 is an extremely solid performer that presents an accurate and detailed image, combined with a realistic depth of field. The Audioquest also produces good levels of contrast, and is able to easily differentiate between various shades of black. The picture is particularly cohesive and stable: rapid movement doesn't result in any major loss of edge-definition. Colours always appear natural, but in some instances they could just be a tad richer.

Assuming you need a cable this long, you'd be mad to buy a cheaper one, because the signal degradation will be awful in a lesser design. Not so here: our review sample of the DV-1 performs superbly, and in shorter, more affordable lengths, we reckon that the excellent Audioquest will be even more impressive.
